Single Sticks (3 fencers from 1 countries)

Thursday, 8 September, 1904

Single sticks had a wooden blade about the same length as a sabre's and were used in the navy to train sailors how to use sabres when boarding enemy ships. This was the only Olympics to hold a medal event in stick fighting. At the 1924 Olympics, there was a demonstration, non-medal event in French cane fighting on July 19 where the "canes" were long straight wooden rods with a maximum diameter of 2.5cm and a length proportional to the height of the fencer such that if placed vertically on the ground, it would reach the fencer's hip.

Men's 3-touch Sabre Individual (21 fencers from 6 countries)

Tuesday, 1 May, 1906

Because many countries fenced 3-touch bouts in sabre, this unscheduled sabre event was held where the bouts were for three touches.

Demonstration Foil (22 fencers from 12 countries)

Thursday, 23 July, 1908

The foil event was just a demonstration event to show the different rules for foil being used by different countries. No scores were kept during the bouting and so there were no final placements. All of the competitors were given a silver commemorative medal and a diploma.

Men's Epee Individual (103 fencers from 13 countries)

Friday, 24 July, 1908

Each country could enter a maximum of 12 fencers. First place received a gold medal, second a silver, and third through eighth bronze. Bouts were for one touch. Double touches counted as a touch against both fencers. If there were no touches after ten minutes, a two minute break would be followed by a five minute period. If there were still no score, both fencers would be credited as having been touched.

Men's Sabre Individual (90 fencers from 12 countries)

Friday, 24 July, 1908

Each country could enter a maximum of 12 fencers. First place received a gold medal, second a silver, and third through eighth bronze. Bouts were for 3 touches and the target area was the torso above the hips. If neither fencer is hit three times after five minutes, a two minute break is held, and the fencers fence for an additional three minutes. If at the end of that time neither fencer has been hit three times, the bout is scored as a double loss regardless of which fencer is leading in the score.

If an event placement is shown as "DNS" (Did Not Start), it means that the fencer was entered but did not show up to compete. When this happens, the IOC considers the fencer to have not competed in the event at all but the fencer's country may consider the fencer to be an Olympian.

4,592 fencers from 106 countries have competed in the Olympic Games

234 fencers from 64 countries have competed in the Youth Olympic Games
